Curriculum Library Now Open for Business!

By Julie Gilmore and Deborah Babb

Plough Library has a new collection, the Curriculum Library, located on the lower level and adjacent to the Buc-Cup. Previously located in the Education Department, the Curriculum Library was moved to the Plough Library so that students can have extended access to these materials.

An opening reception for the Curriculum Library was held Tuesday, November 1st, from 4 - 6pm, with attendance by Education Department faculty and staff, as well as many others from the CBU community including Dean of Arts Frank Buscher, Academic VP Tony Aretz and Interim President Lance Forsdick.

Designed for education students, the Curriculum Library offers resources to help them with assignments, projects, and student teaching. The information and materials in the Curriculum Library should help students develop lesson plans, find materials that will interest children, and teach a variety of children.

The Curriculum Library collection consists of a wide variety of materials. There are teaching resources, including textbooks, teachers' guides, activity books, and lesson plans. In addition to material for teachers, there is also a wide selection of books for children and young adults.

Christmas in New York

We have a new puzzle fresh from the Metropolitan Museum of Art Store in Rockefeller Center! Take a study break and daydream about what will be under your Christmas tree.

Take a Study Break!

Free hot chocolate and cookies will be available in the library Monday, December 12th, 7 - 9 pm.

Good Luck on Your Exams!

From the Director

As we rush through the days getting ready for Christmas and finals why not take a break in the library with a cup of hot chocolate and check out some of our recent acquisitions?

To help prepare for holiday baking, flip through our December issue of Southern Living for recipes. Also, our netLibrary e-book database has cookbooks like the The Low-Carb Baking and Dessert Cookbook (though that doesn't sound like very much fun to me)! Consumer Reports will help you discover the best products when shopping for gifts. The new Memphis Magazine features Christmas treasures in the Bluff City. Forbes' December issue has some fine gift suggestions for those who like to dream big: the Bentley Continental can be had for a mere $165,000!

And don't forget to check out our New Books shelf for some downtime reading:

The Art of the Short Story; The Post-Automobile City; How Do You Know You're Not Wrong?; and The Business of Holidays are just some of the interesting titles recently added to our collection.

The staff of Plough Library wishes all of you a very blessed and peaceful Christmas and Happy New Year!

Faculty: Plan Ahead for Instruction

Many of you have prepared or will soon be preparing syllabi for your Spring classes. Some of your classes will certainly have components requiring research and writing. Now is the time to plan to include a session of library instruction/orientation in your syllabus. You may plan for one or two sessions depending on the research requirements. It appears to me that students are much more likely to start their research earlier, be more comfortable in using the library, and have better references when they are more familiar with research resources and methods.

So, call me at 321-4355, email me at bhead@cbu.edu, or use the online form at <http://www.cbu.edu/library/instruction/instruct.htm> to schedule a session or discuss your particular needs. You may also contact your library liaison to schedule an instruction session.

Another option is to assign your class to attend one of our walk-in sessions for extra credit. Our walk-in sessions offer instruction on plagiarism, introductory and advanced database research, quality research on the Internet, navigating business research resources and general library orientation.

We invite you to include a link to the Plough Library website in your syllabus, personal website or WebCT class site. Students are much more likely to use library links for research when they are located on course related materials (OCLC, 2002).

Cataloging

Julie Gilmore

jgilmore@cbu.edu

Q: Why does it sometime appear that books on similar subjects are not together on the shelf?

A: Books that seem to be similar are not always next to each other on the shelves. This is because we assign books call numbers based on their subject headings. Often, books that have similar topics also contain different information, leading to different subject headings. These different subject headings are the main reason that books that appear to be similar are not always shelved together.

RENEW BOOKS ONLINE!

Featured Database

CCH Tax Research NetWork

With tax season fast approaching, you should know that we have a database devoted exclusively to tax information! CCH Tax Research NetWork is available to CBU students, faculty, and staff. It includes tax forms, codes, regulations, court cases, rulings, legislative documents, treaties, IRS publications, as well as expert explanations and analysis. Federal Tax Archives are available for all years since 1978; State Tax Archives are available for all years since 1994. CCH also provides up-to-date tax news with daily reports on Congress, the IRS, state governments and court releases that affect federal and state taxes. This material is immediately available in CCH, so you can search for the latest developments.

To access CCH, go to Jump to a Database on the right side of the library homepage at <http://www.cbu.edu/library/> and select CCH Tax Research from the drop-down menu.

If you need help using this or any of our databases, do not hesitate to ask a librarian for assistance.

In Other News...

Plough Library will go live with a beta version of ENCompass by the end of January 2006. ENCompass is a sort of "super" search engine that will allow you to search multiple databases, along with the library catalog, all at the same time.

Staff News

Margaret Cardwell attended the West Tennessee Academic Library Consortium (WeTALC) meeting at UT Martin in early November, where she had a chance to visit with Laura Simpson, our former ILL librarian. Laura is currently employed as the Cataloging and Technical Services Librarian at Lambuth University in Jackson, TN.

Julie Gilmore, Suzanne Mangrum, and Margaret Cardwell attended the Memphis Area Library Council (MALC) meeting at the University of Memphis. Betsy Park presented a program about the U of M libraries' participation in the ETS development of their Information and Computer Literacy Assessment.

Electronic Books - Netlibrary

For nearly 60 years, Penguin Classics has been the preeminent publisher of the world's greatest works of literature. This month, NetLibrary highlights the Penguin Classics Series by selecting Great Expectations as the November eBook of the Month.

As Dickens spins his timeless tale, readers will find themselves caught up in his memorable characters, rich humor, intriguing plot twists, precipitous cliffhangers, and universal themes such as the importance of honor, honesty, and empathy. A terrifying encounter with an escaped convict in a graveyard on the wild Kent marshes; a summons to meet the bitter, decaying Miss Havisham and her beautiful, cold-hearted ward Estella; the sudden generosity of a mysterious benefactor — these form a series of events that change the orphaned Pip's life forever, and he eagerly abandons his humble origins to begin a new life. When his secret benefactor turns out to be a convict whom Pip helped as a child, he is forced to reexamine his feelings about society, criminality, and what it means to be a gentleman. Great Expectations can be read on many levels: as a morality play of a young boy's coming of age; as a social critique on money and how it affects everyone around it; and as mystery story replete with secrets, shady characters and thieves. In the end, Great Expectations is an unforgettable tale about fate, and how chance encounters can alter the lives of everyone around them.

About Charles Dickens

Charles Dickens was born in Portsmouth in 1812. His father was imprisoned for debt and Dickens was briefly sent to work in a blacking warehouse at the age of twelve. He taught himself shorthand and became a reporter. His first novel, The Pickwick Papers (1836-37), was a huge success. His most famous works include Oliver Twist (1837), A Christmas Carol (1843), David Copperfield (1849-50), A Tale of Two Cities (1859) and Great Expectations (1860-61). His last novel, The Mystery of Edwin Drood, was never completed and he died in 1870.

A Student Looks for an Education Video

You will also find back issues of education journals and a growing collection of education videos in the Curriculum Library.

Because of demand for the materials located in the Curriculum Library, the teaching materials are designated as reference items and cannot be checked out.

The children's and young adult fiction books may be checked out by all CBU students, faculty, and staff, and not just those in the Education department. However, they may only be checked out for three days.

Another exciting feature of the Curriculum Library is the addition of two new computers. Education students have priority use of these machines, but the computers are open for all students to use.

Just for Fun: Favorite Out-of-Print Children's Book Survey

From now until February 2006, the Children's Book Council, the non-profit association of children's publishers, will be hosting a poll on their website asking all librarians, teachers, parents, and even kids to name a book currently out of print that they would love to be reissued. Visit <http://www.cbcbooks.org/readinglists/ooppoll.html> to vote for your favorite out-of-print book. The poll is a project of the ALA-CBC Joint Committee, and the top ten books named will be announced in the Spring.
