Plough Library and CBU Honors Jane Fleet

By Barbara Hill

As part of National Library Week, current and former CBU staff, faculty, and friends came together to honor Jane Fleet upon her retirement. The rain did not dampen the fun as the reception was held in the BucCup on Wednesday, April 21, 2004.

Jane was glad to see former CBU employees Barbara Allard, Carolyn Denegri, and Emily Theobald. Ann Denton, the wife of former library director Wayne Denton, joined in the fun as well. Many current CBU employees stopped by as well.

Jane had been the Technical Services

Librarian and the night owl of Plough Library for many, many years but had to retire following her car wreck on Halloween last year. Although Jane won't be working at Plough Library any more, she will stay busy leading her various book groups and tutoring students at Idlewild Elementary School.

Plough Library Welcomes New Librarian

Join us at Plough Library in welcoming our new Librarian, V. Suzanne Hayes Mangrum. Suzanne comes to us from the Hattiesburg, Mississippi Public Library. When I asked Suzanne to tell me something about herself, she had this to say:

I began my college career at Utah State University then transferred to Harding University in Searcy, AR where I graduated in 2000 with a B. A. in English. After college I went to Wuhan, China to teach English at Zhongnan U. of Economics and Law.

Off Campus Access to Library Resources

Plough Library will have reduced hours this summer. It is important to be able to access our resources from your home or business.

Take a minute to review these procedures so that you can be complete your work without delay.

Off-Campus Access to Plough Library Databases

Who can access library databases from off-campus?

If you are a Christian Brothers University student, faculty, or staff member, you may use the Library's electronic databases from off-campus. Publisher licenses restrict us from providing off-campus access to other users (including alumni and community borrowers).

Which databases are available from off-campus?

All databases on the CBU Library Databases page can be accessed from off-campus.

How do I access databases from off-campus?

From the library's main page, click on the link for databases. Click on a subject or a letter of the alphabet, then choose your database by clicking on the title of the database. If you are off-campus, our proxy server will recognize your IP address as foreign, and will therefore ask you for a username and password. Enter your current CBU e-mail username and e-mail password. If you do not have a CBU e-mail account, you will be unable to access the databases from off-campus.

You will remain connected to the proxy server as long as you keep your browser window open. This means that you only have to input your username and password once. However if you close your browser window, you will be prompted to log in again if you try to access another database.

I'm having problems accessing databases from off-campus. What should I do?

First, make sure that you are not logged into your e-mail account. This means you need to exit Web Mail or Pine if you are logged on. After exiting your e-mail account, try accessing the database again.

Important: The only way to log off of Web Mail is by clicking the log off button at the top of the screen. If you are in Web-Mail, and you close the browser window by clicking on the "x" in the upper right hand corner, you are not logged off - the connection remains until it times out. You must log out by clicking on the log off mailbox icon.

If your computer is behind a corporate firewall or an institution's firewall, you will not be able to use the library proxy server at work. E-mail the library, or call us at 321-3432 for help.

When I try to sign into EZ-Proxy, I get a message that says "This is cookie.htm from the docs subdirectory".

The proxy server sends a "cookie" to your browser to indicate that you have been validated by the proxy and are authorized to access the restricted databases or other resources. This cookie cannot be used for any other purpose, and will be deleted when you close your browser. If your browser has not been set to accept cookies, you will see this message and will not be able to access any of the library's databases from off-campus. You will need to set your browser to accept cookies, and then try logging in again.

Still have questions?

E-mail the library, or call us at 321-3432.
